If you have a disability or illness and have reached State Pension age, you may be entitled to this benefit.

What is Attendance Allowance?

Attendance Allowance is a benefit that helps pay for your care needs if you have a disability or a long-term illness and have reached State Pension age. Attendance Allowance can be paid regardless of your income, savings or National Insurance contribution record and is a tax-free benefit.

If you are a carer who also has care needs, you can claim Attendance Allowance for yourself and this will not affect your Carer’s Allowance. Getting Attendance Allowance does not reduce other benefits; it may even increase them.

If you have a carer, claiming Attendance Allowance may help them to qualify for certain benefits (such as Carer’s Allowance). Attendance Allowance may also entitle you and/or your carer to further help with Council Tax.

There are no restrictions on how you can spend your Attendance Allowance. You do not have to spend it on paying for the care that you need. However, your council or trust can take Attendance Allowance into account when calculating how much you might need to pay for any care services you receive.

Attendance Allowance will not apply to you:

- if you are between 16 and under your State Pension age. You could see if you can claim Personal Independence Payment (PIP) instead
- if you have reached State Pension age, but are already receiving Disability Living Allowance (DLA) or PIP.

Note: To check when you’ll reach your State Pension age, visit gov.uk/state-pension-age
Who can claim Attendance Allowance?

To qualify for Attendance Allowance, you must meet all of the following criteria:

- You’ve reached State Pension age.
- You need help looking after yourself because you have a disability or long-term illness.
- You have had the disability or illness for at least six months (you can make your claim before the six months have passed, but you will not receive any payment until they have).
- You have no immigration conditions attached to your stay in the UK, subject to some exceptions. If you have immigration restrictions on your stay in the UK, claiming benefits may affect your future right to remain in the UK, so seek specialist immigration advice before claiming – you can search for immigration specialists at find-legal-advice.justice.gov.uk (England, Scotland or Wales) or www.lawsoc-ni.org/solicitors (Northern Ireland).
- You meet the residence and presence conditions.

Note: If you are terminally ill, there are simpler rules which make it easier to apply – see page 11 for details.

How much is Attendance Allowance worth?

There are two rates of Attendance Allowance:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Rate</th>
<th>Amount per week 2022/23</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Higher</td>
<td>£92.40</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lower</td>
<td>£61.85</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
You will be paid the higher rate of Attendance Allowance if you meet one of the following criteria:

- you satisfy both the daytime and night-time tests
- you are terminally ill (someone is classified as terminally ill if they are not expected to live longer than six months).

You will be paid the lower rate of Attendance Allowance if:

- you satisfy the daytime or night-time test.

Specific rules apply for some kidney patients undergoing renal dialysis at least twice per week.

Do I satisfy the tests?

Attendance Allowance can be paid if you need help with your personal care or someone to check that you are okay. The term used for needing help with personal care is ‘attention’ and the term used for needing someone to check on you is ‘supervision’ – see pages 5-7 for more information.

Note: What matters is that you need either attention or supervision, not whether you are currently getting all the help that you need. So remember to think about the help you need, not just the help that you currently get.

Daytime test

To satisfy the daytime test, you need to show that you reasonably need either one of the following:

- frequent help with personal care throughout the day (ie about three times or more)
- someone to check on you continually (ie frequently or regularly) throughout the day to make sure you are safe.
Night-time test

To satisfy the night-time test, you need to show that you reasonably need either one of the following:

- help with personal care at least twice a night, or once a night for at least 20 minutes
- someone to check on you at least twice a night, or once a night for at least 20 minutes, to make sure that you are safe.

Note: If no one is currently helping you with personal care, you may still be accepted as needing help if you have some difficulty coping.

If no one is currently checking on you, you may still be accepted as needing supervision if you or another person may be placed in danger without it.

Attention – help with personal care

You may have personal care needs if you need help with:

- getting in and out of a chair
- bathing and washing
- dressing and undressing
- help with medication and treatment
- getting in and out of bed and sleeping
- communicating
- eating and drinking
- breathing
- using the toilet
- walking around indoors.
The help must usually be given in your presence. Here are some examples of the help you may need:

- You have arthritis which makes movement difficult – you need somebody to help you with daily activities such as getting in and out of bed, washing and dressing, and getting in and out of chairs.

- You are profoundly deaf and British Sign Language is your first language – you need an interpreter when communicating without sign language, to interpret spoken announcements, and perhaps also to interpret written English.

- You have a mental health problem and you need prompting to look after yourself and to do things such as taking your medication, eating, washing and dressing.

- You are visually impaired and need someone to assist in situations such as selecting clothes to wear, using cooking appliances safely and preparing food.

- You have a learning disability and need help with activities including managing money, writing letters and looking after your health and your hygiene.

Supervision – needing someone to check on you

To qualify as needing supervision, you must need someone to check on you regularly. The checks must be to avoid ‘substantial danger’ to yourself or others due to your disability.

For example, you may need such checks if you have memory loss, are in danger of falling, have poor awareness of potential dangers, have serious behavioural problems, lose consciousness or have seizures.

Substantial danger may include situations such as falling, leaving the gas on, self-harm, violence towards others or a serious risk to your health should you be left unsupervised. The potentially dangerous situation does not have to happen frequently, but you must need frequent checks to reduce the chance of harm.
How to claim Attendance Allowance

England, Wales and Scotland:

➤ Contact the Attendance Allowance Helpline on 0800 731 0122 (textphone 0800 731 0317).

➤ Visit gov.uk/attendance-allowance to download a claim form.

Northern Ireland:

➤ Contact Disability and Carers Service on 0800 587 0912 (textphone: 0800 012 1574).

➤ Visit nidirect.gov.uk/articles/attendance-allowance to download a claim form.

If you ask for a claim form by phone, it should be stamped with the date of issue. This is the date from which the benefit will be paid if the claim is successful, providing you return the form within six weeks. If you are not able to complete the form by this date, please let them know and seek advice.

If you download the claim form or get one from a local advice agency, the claim will start from the date the completed form is received.

Read the form and the notes that go with it before you start to complete the form. You can attach pages to the application form if you think there is not enough space to explain the help that you need. Remember to add your name and National Insurance number to the extra pages.

Tips for completing the claim form

➤ The form is long and detailed so take your time to complete it, and remember that you don’t have to complete it all in one go.

➤ List all of the help you need before completing the claim form.

➤ Be honest with yourself about how long things take you and if you can do them safely.

➤ Ask your carer, if you have one, to list all the help they give you to make sure you don’t miss anything out.
Remember that what matters is whether you need the help, not whether you are already getting it.

Think about the difficulties you have and what type of help you would need to make things easier.

If you have equipment or adaptations that help you with your daily life, explain any help that you need to use them, and any help you need from another person in addition to the equipment and adaptations.

Keep a diary for a week or so if you are unsure about how much help you need.

You do not have to need help every day – the requirement is ‘most of the time’. If your needs vary from day to day, make a list of the help you need on each day of the week or month, depending on how much the pattern varies.

Don’t just think about what happens on good days – get an overall picture of the help you need.

Explain any falls or accidents you have had.

Keep a copy of your form.

You could ask for help to complete the claim form from a local advice agency – see ‘Further help’ section for details.

When filling in the form, the aim is to explain how your disability or ill health affects you. The form asks you:

Washing, bathing and looking after your appearance – do you need help:

- ☐ getting in and out of the bath or shower?
- ☐ adjusting shower controls?
- ☐ shaving or putting on make-up?
- ☐ washing?

Going to the toilet – do you need help:

- ☐ adjusting your clothes after using the toilet?
- ☐ finding the toilet in unfamiliar places?
- ☐ using the toilet during the night?
☐ changing clothes or bedding if you have an accident?

Getting dressed or undressed – do you need help:
- ☐ with fastenings, shoelaces and buttons?
- ☐ recognising when your clothes are on inside out?
- ☐ putting clothes on or taking them off?

Communicating – do you need help:
- ☐ understanding or hearing people, or being understood by them?
- ☐ answering the phone?
- ☐ reading and writing letters?

Mealtimes – do you need help:
- ☐ eating and drinking?

Help with medical treatment – do you need help:
- ☐ identifying your tablets?
- ☐ reading and understanding instructions about taking medication?
- ☐ administering medication or treatment to yourself?
- ☐ managing a condition like diabetes?
- ☐ recognising whether your condition deteriorates?
- ☐ adjusting your hearing aid?
- ☐ dealing with the side effects of your medication?

Supervision – do you need someone to watch over you
- ☐ in case you have a seizure or pass out?
- ☐ because you lack awareness of danger?
- ☐ because you could be a danger to yourself or others?
- ☐ in case you get confused, forgetful or disorientated?
- ☐ to give you medication for angina or asthma attacks?
- ☐ to help calm you down during a panic attack?

Getting around indoors – do you need help
- ☐ navigating stairs?
- ☐ getting up from a chair?
- ☐ getting in and out of bed?
- ☐ moving safely from room to room?
Supporting information

You may have information about your health and the help you need from a number of different people. This might include:

- letters from your GP or consultant
- your care plan from your local council or trust – giving information about the help you need
- a report from your occupational therapist – giving information about the equipment and adaptations you need
- information from a community psychiatric nurse
- appointment letters
- prescription lists.

You can send this information with your application.

If you are asked for more information

Once you have returned the form, the decision maker from the Department for Work and Pensions (DWP) may contact you, your doctor, or someone you mentioned on the form to ask for more information or to arrange for a doctor to visit you. In Northern Ireland this will be a decision maker from the Disability and Carers Service.

If a doctor, appointed by the DWP or Department for Communities, comes to visit you, your carer can be with you during the appointment. The doctor may want to examine you and ask further questions. It is a good idea to make a note beforehand of the things you want to tell the doctor about.

If you have a terminal illness

Special rules allow people who are terminally ill to get help quickly. You are considered to be terminally ill if you have a progressive illness that is likely to limit your life expectancy to six months or less. It is impossible to say exactly how long someone will live and some people who receive Attendance Allowance under these rules live much longer than six months.
Under these special rules, you do not have to satisfy the qualifying period (ie that you have had the disability or been in ill health for at least six months). You also do not have to have been present in Great Britain for 104 out of the past 156 weeks before claiming – you only need to be present at the time of claiming.

If you are claiming Attendance Allowance under these rules, your claim should include a DS1500 form, which is available from your GP or consultant. You (or the person making the claim on your behalf) will be given a freepost address for the DS1500 when you make the claim over the phone.

You will not have to complete the part of the claim form that asks about your personal care or supervision needs, as you will automatically qualify for the higher rate of Attendance Allowance.

Note: Under the special rules, a claim can be made on behalf of a person without their permission. The letter about the money awarded won’t mention special rules.

The decision

You will receive a written decision on your claim that tells you what rates of benefit have been awarded and from what date.

Attendance Allowance can be awarded for a fixed period or for an indefinite period. If you are awarded the benefit for a fixed period, the decision will tell you when the period ends. A new claim form will be sent to you well before your award ends.

Challenging the decision

If you are refused Attendance Allowance or it is awarded at a lower rate than you expected, you can ask the Department for Work and Pensions (DWP) (England, Wales and Scotland) or the Department for Communities
(DfC) (Northern Ireland) to look at the decision again. You must do this before you appeal. This is called a mandatory reconsideration.

If you still disagree once they have done this, you must lodge an appeal with the Tribunal Service (England, Wales and Scotland) or the Appeal Service (Northern Ireland) and attach a copy of the mandatory reconsideration notice with the appeal.

It is important to challenge a decision or get advice as quickly as possible because there are time limits that generally mean you must take action within one month. If you fall outside of this time limit, then it may still be possible to challenge the decision. For more information about appealing a benefit decision, visit carersuk.org/appealsguide

What to do if your circumstances change

If you are paid the lower rate of Attendance Allowance for either daytime or night-time needs and the help that you need increases so that you have both daytime and night-time needs, you can contact the DWP (or Disability and Carers Service in Northern Ireland) and ask for your case to be looked at again. You will be asked to complete a form giving details of how your needs have changed.

If you ask for an Attendance Allowance award to be looked at again, there is always a risk that the award could be decreased rather than increased. Therefore, it is always best to get help from a local advice agency before you contact the DWP (or Disability and Carers Service in Northern Ireland). To find out more about advice agencies in your area, see the ‘Further help’ section.

Going into hospital, a care home or a hospice

You, or someone acting on your behalf, should also tell the DWP (or Disability and Carers Service in Northern Ireland) if you have been admitted to a hospital, a care home or a hospice, as this may affect your benefit.

Going into hospital

Attendance Allowance is not payable after the first 28 days in hospital.
Going into a care home
Attendance Allowance is not payable after the first 28 days in a care home unless you are completely self-funding.

Special rules apply if your council or trust is temporarily funding your stay in a care home while you sell your former home. Seek advice if you are in this situation. Attendance Allowance will continue to be paid if you are in a nursing home and the only help you get with your fees is an amount called the Registered Nursing Care Contribution from the NHS.

If you live in Scotland and receive free personal care towards residential care, your Attendance Allowance will stop after 28 days. To find out more about free personal care, contact Care Information Scotland on 0800 011 3200 or at careinfoscotland.scot.

The linking rule
Any stays in hospital or a care home separated by 28 days or less are added together when working out when Attendance Allowance should stop.

Going into a hospice
Attendance Allowance will generally still be payable if you are terminally ill and in a hospice.

Other help you might qualify for

Means-tested benefits and tax credits
If you are already receiving means-tested benefits or tax credits (such as Income Support, income-related Employment and Support Allowance, income-based Jobseeker’s Allowance, Pension Credit, Universal Credit, Housing Benefit, Council Tax Reduction or Working Tax Credits) getting Attendance Allowance may mean that you become entitled to an increase in your benefits or tax credits.

If you’re already receiving means-tested benefits or tax credits (or your partner is), notify all the offices that pay them to you to let them know you are now getting Attendance Allowance. An award of Attendance Allowance can also mean that you become eligible for a means-tested benefit for the first time. So, if you are awarded Attendance Allowance, it would be a good idea to get a benefits check.
Any deductions that are being made from means-tested benefits because other adults share your household, may be removed if you get Attendance Allowance. You can find out what benefits you are entitled to and how much you should be paid, by getting an online benefits check. You can arrange one by contacting the Carers UK Helpline: advice@carersuk.org.

Note: You can also check if you might qualify for any benefits using this online tool: carersuk.org/benefits-calculator. It will take about 20 minutes to complete.

These online tools are not suitable for everyone. Special rules apply to some groups of people, for example students, people under 18, people in permanent residential care, UK nationals who live abroad and people who are not British or Irish citizens.

Exemptions from the benefit cap

Households will be exempt from the benefit cap if you/your partner are entitled to Attendance Allowance.

Blue Badge Scheme

The Blue Badge scheme allows people with severe walking disabilities to park in parking restricted areas. For example, if you have a badge, you can park for free and for any length of time at on-street parking meters and on-street pay and display areas. There are some situations where you will automatically be eligible for a Blue Badge, which include if you:

- are registered blind or as severely sight impaired
- receive the higher rate of the mobility component of the Disability Living Allowance (DLA)
- (Scotland only) receive the higher rate of the mobility component of Child Disability Payment
- used to get DLA and your Personal Independence Payment decision is being appealed receive Personal Independence Payment because you can’t walk more than 50 metres or for certain other reasons receive the War Pensioners’ Mobility Supplement have been awarded a lump sum benefit from the Armed Forces Compensation scheme (tariffs 1 to 8) – you have also been certified as having a permanent or substantial disability which means you can’t walk or find walking very difficult.

If none of these apply to you, you may still be eligible for a Blue Badge (subject to further assessment by your council or trust) if one of the following applies:

- You have a permanent or substantial disability that means you can’t walk or find walking very difficult.
- You have severe upper limb disabilities in both arms, drive a motor vehicle and have difficulty using parking meters.
- (Scotland only) You are unable to walk or virtually unable to walk because of a temporary but substantial disability which is likely to last for at least 12 months but less than three years.
- (Scotland only) You have a mental condition that means you lack awareness about the danger of traffic when making journeys.

Public transport concessions

If you live in England, Wales or Scotland and receive Attendance Allowance, you may be able to purchase a Disabled Person’s Railcard. For more information, call 0345 605 0525 (textphone 0345 601 0132) or visit disabledpersons-railcard.co.uk. If you live in Northern Ireland and are aged 60 or above, you may eligible for a SmartPass or Senior Citizens SmartPass. Contact Translink for more information on 028 9066 6630 or at translink.co.uk

If you live in England, Wales or Northern Ireland and are disabled, you may qualify for free local bus travel, although this is not directly linked to whether you receive Attendance Allowance. For more details, contact your council – or in Northern Ireland, contact Translink. If you live in Scotland and receive Attendance Allowance or are aged 60 or over, you will receive free bus travel. If you live in Orkney, Shetland or the Western Isles, you will also receive two free return ferry journeys each year to the Scottish mainland. Find out more at www.transport.gov.scot/concessionary-travel/60plus-or-disabled

Companion entitlement (Scotland only)

If you receive Attendance Allowance, you will be eligible for a Companion Card, allowing a companion to travel with you for free. You should contact your council or visit Transport Scotland for further information: www.transport.gov.scot/concessionary-travel/60plus-or-disabled

Residence and presence

To satisfy the residence and presence tests you must meet both the following conditions:

- You must have been present in Great Britain (which for this purpose also includes Northern Ireland) for 104 weeks out of the 156 weeks before claiming (two out of the last three years).
- You must be habitually resident.

‘Present’ means physically present in Great Britain. Some people may be treated as being in Great Britain while abroad, eg members of the armed forces. The past presence test does not apply to people recognised as refugees and their families, or those who are terminally ill.

The habitual residence test is a test to see if you normally live in the United Kingdom, the Channel Islands, the Republic of Ireland or the Isle of Man. It applies if you have been living abroad. Relevant factors are where you normally live, where you expect to live in future, your reasons for coming to this country, the length of time spent abroad before you came here, and any ties you still have with the country where you have come from.

If you’re unsure, it is a good idea to seek specialist advice, for example from Citizens Advice: citizensadvice.org.uk/about-us/contact-us/contact-us/contact-us. The AIRE Centre can also provide advice on individual rights in Europe and can be contacted on 020 7831 4276 or by email at info@airecentre.org.
